

Community Health Nursing– In a new perspective

Shah MS*, Khan F, Hussain M, Sabri I.

*Junior Resident, Deptt. of Community Medicine, JNMC, AMU, Aligarh

Deptt of Forensic Medicine, JNMC, AMU, Aligarh

Junior Resident, Deptt. of Microbiology, JNMC, AMU, Aligarh

Community Health Nursing is a field of nursing practice for which there exists a body of knowledge and related skills which is applied in meeting the health needs of communities, families and individuals in their normal environment. Community health nursing has evolved into a focus on care of individuals, families and communities. The focus and orientation are different to other nurses in their work areas. Community health nursing is a specific and specialized orientation to the care that embodies principles of primary health as guiding concepts.